Network News

I am pleased to inform you of the outcome of the process to procure a National Core Content (NCC) collection for three years from April 2019. The resources that will be included are:

Bibliographic databases

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Provider</th>
<th>AMED</th>
<th>Wolters Kluwer</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>British Nursing Index</td>
<td>ProQuest</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CINAHL</td>
<td>EBSCO</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Embase</td>
<td>Wolters Kluwer</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Embase</td>
<td>Wolters Kluwer</td>
<td>New</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HMIC</td>
<td>Wolters Kluwer</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Medline</td>
<td>ProQuest</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Medline</td>
<td>Wolters Kluwer</td>
<td>New</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PsycINFO</td>
<td>ProQuest</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Users will be able to search the bibliographic databases in HDAS and via the Provider’s native interfaces (the ProQuest native interface as well as the Dialog platform for British Nursing Index, Medline and PsycINFO; the Wolters Kluwer interface for AMED, Embase, Emcare, HMIC, and Medline). Note that the ProQuest version of Medline will continue to be used in HDAS.

Full text resources

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Provider</th>
<th>BMJ</th>
<th>Journal titles as at present (see here)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>ProQuest</td>
<td>Formerly Hospital Premium Collection</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ProQuest</td>
<td>New, title list to follow</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
We will also continue to provide access to backfiles of JAMA and selected AMA Archives titles, as at present (see here).

Decommissioned resources

To achieve the maximum breadth of content within the fixed budget available, EBSCO’s CINAHL Plus with Full Text, Health Business Elite and Medline will be decommissioned.

Note that the decommissioning of CINAHL Plus Full Text will mean the loss from the national collection of the three remaining Mark Allen nursing journals – the British Journal of Nursing, the British Journal of Midwifery and the British Journal of Community Nursing.

I’d like to thank everyone involved in the procurement process, in particular the team at NICE and the HEE and Trust-based librarians on the Content Group, but also all those across the health library network who were involved in testing the database interfaces and/or who responded to the surveys earlier in the year which informed our decision-making.

We are continuing to explore options to increase the resources provided through central and collaborative procurement, to improve return on investment, equity of access and reduce time currently spent on duplicated local procurement.

Please get in touch if you have any queries!

Kind regards
Helen Bingham

• The National OpenAthens administrators group is doing some work at the moment to look at the current OpenAthens structure, and whether it can be improved. As a result, we need to understand what resources, if any, are being bought for groups such as public health staff, social care staff, commissioning staff, and GPs and practice staff. If you are an administrator for one of these organisations/groups of staff, please could you confirm if you buy resources in addition to the national core content resources. We’re interested in which resources, and any usage stats you have for each resource, so that we can get an idea of how well used they are. Many thanks, Catherine Micklethwaite

Knowledge for Healthcare

• Knowvember

You’ve heard of it, you might think it sounds like something other people do or you might have even dabbled in it yourself. Wherever you are on this spectrum, knowledge management is a core skill in the librarian’s toolbox. Knowvember is a brand-new initiative that aims to inspire library and information professionals to deliver a knowledge management activity during the month of November (see what we did there?). Whether you are new to knowledge management or a seasoned professional, Knowvember is an opportunity to showcase this core skill and demonstrate how library and information services can contribute value to an organisation and enable the delivery of high-quality care.

If you weren’t able to attend any of the workshops that were run by the HEE/ CILIP Leadership Knowvember project team during September, the materials are available via the Knowledge for Healthcare blog, along with a wide range of other resources that will be useful. (https://kfh.libraryservices.nhs.uk/knowvember) The Knowvember project team will be running October’s #ukmedlib chat where they’ll be demystifying the dark art of knowledge management with seven key questions:

1. What do you think ‘knowledge management’ is? What activities do you associate with knowledge management?
2. What are some of the knowledge management activities you have delivered? Were they successful? Would you do anything differently?
3. How do you measure the impact of a knowledge management activity in your organisation?
4. What resources do you use to support knowledge management?
5. What value do you think knowledge management would bring to your organisation?
6. What are some of the barriers to delivering knowledge management and how can we start to overcome them?
7. Have you thought of an activity that you could deliver for #knowvember18?

Improvement and Innovation Bulletin September 2018

Health, adult social care and ageing bulletin: September 2018

New article by Sustainable Improvement Team, NHS England: "One door closes, another opens: surviving and thriving through organizational restructure by ensuring knowledge continuity". It considers our knowledge team's journey to preserve organisational memory through successive restructures in health and care service improvement. It addresses how we sought to enable knowledge continuity in the short-term as we faced up to the largest restructure in NHS service improvement since 2001’s formation of the NHS Modernisation Agency, and the steps we've taken to future-proof a knowledge culture for the long term by designing a '5Cs' knowledge service. We hope the lessons we learned will be useful to others as they consider their own knowledge service.

The spread challenge: how to support the successful uptake of innovations and improvements in health care. This report outlines the challenges facing the NHS in improving the uptake of new ideas and practices, and the need for new approaches when developing national and local programmes to support the spread of innovation. It highlights key recommendations for practitioners involved in spreading health care improvement.
