CFP articles

Allocation open to all again.

Remember that this allocation has to be shared across the NHS in England, and each CFP article supplied - whether by the British Library, Reprints Desk or the RSM Library - costs the NHS £33. We ask NHS-funded library services to request CFP articles when - and only when - these can’t be sourced from within the NHS and the article needs to be shared (i.e. it’s not just for one individual).

Go to http://www.libraryservices.nhs.uk/forlibrarystaff/information/nhs_copyright.html for information - including a decision tree and the interactive NHS Copy Aid - about when and how to request CFP articles.

GDPR and data protection: One year on, what now?

Tuesday 30 April 2019

- Morning session 09:45 - 12:45 (registration from 09:00)
- Afternoon session 13:45 - 16:45 (registration from 13:00)

One year after the implementation of the Data Protection Act 2018, librarians and information professionals still need to ensure that their organisations are compliant with their increased responsibilities under the legislation in their processing of personal data.

This practical half-day training event, developed for CILIP by Naomi Korn Associates, will examine the landscape, what we have learnt so far about the new legislation, as well as examining the relationship between data protection and broader information management issues, Cyber security and ICT as well as governance, risk and policy frameworks.
A workshop style training session, there will be interactive sessions and group work to engage participants and enable questions and discussions.

It is ideal for staff across all sectors, including managers, those in or likely to take on data protection officer roles and staff who collect and process personal data. By attending this workshop you will:

- Gain a working knowledge of your data protection obligations under the legislation
- Develop insight into how data protection relates to broader information management, governance and security issues

Venue: CILIP, 7 Ridgmount Street, London, WC1E 7AE
